How we may help you

- Provide ongoing advice and information on primary brain and spinal tumours.
- Advice and information about radiotherapy and chemotherapy and their side-effects.
- Advice and information on other aspects such as seizures, fatigue, travel insurance, wig information, financial concerns etc.
- We review patients in a nurse led clinic whilst you are having radiotherapy, liaising with your consultant as required.
- Providing continuing support for you and your family during and after treatment acting as your key-worker (see information overleaf).
- We work closely with other health care professionals involved in your care and/or treatment referring you to their service when required.
- We run a support group based at the Sir Robert Ogden Macmillan Centre at St James's Hospital.

Key-worker

As your key-worker we are a main point of contact for you during and after your treatment for information, advice and support. We also communicate with other healthcare professionals involved with your care, informing them and updating them on any relevant changes.

If at any point during your treatment or after we feel that a member of your local community team is more appropriate to be your key-worker then we will discuss this with you. It is not unusual for your key-worker to change throughout your care pathway, this depends on your individual basis. Your GP, District Nurse or Community Macmillan Nurse may become your key-worker in the future.

Your key-worker name and contact number

Please note: Your key-worker is not an emergency contact number
